Remarkable Marriage of Kentucky

Octogenarians. The very largest congregation that ever as sembled in any church in Lexington, came together on Monday, January 1, at the Mainstreet Christian Church, to witness the marriage of Dr. Joseph G. Chion and Mrs. Catherine Lawson, the former of this city and tire latter of Fayette county. The respective eges of the high contracting parties, made it one of the most extraordinary marriages that was ever solemnized. The groom was of the ripe but modest age of 80 years, and looked as vigorous as most men of 60. The lady will be 90 years of age on the 1st day of May next. Dr. Chinn was a soldier of the war of 1812. He enlisted when but 13 years of age, but owing to an accident by which ha was severely wounded in the foot, he did not go out until the next year, but served with credit until the class of the war. This is his third marriage. vigorous as most men of 60. The lady will be close of the war. This is his third marriage, but in all probability he may survive it many years. Mrs. Lawson was born in Virginia but was brought by her parents to Kentucky in early life. When but 16, she was addressed by Mr. David Lawson, and became engaged to him, but with rare good sense refused to marry him until he had secured sufficient for their musupport. He left immediately for the South, where he remained twenty-three years, she hearing nothing of him in the meantime, but remained constant through those long years of silence and doubt. At last he one day walked into the parlor of the house where his faithful "Kitty" lived and claimed her hand and the fulfillment of her promise, saying that he had made money enough to purchase a farm. They were duly married and lived together torty years, during which they grew rich, and the kind of wife she made is best told when it is said that he left her his whole estate. A few years ago she thought it about time to prepare for the great change that awaits old and young alike, but reserved enough to make herself comfortable, live as long as she might. She had a dream not long ago that made a deep impression on her, and that was, that the Lord was sparing her for some wise purpose, which she interpreted, without the doubts and incredulty that beset Sarah of old, and these led her to accept one of the several offers of matrimony. Having made up her mind to marry, she see about it with all the eagerness that any girl of 18 could exhibit. She bought a haudsome trousseau and appeared at the altar in a steel colored silk, with velvet cloak, sealskin muff and boa, velvet bonnet trimmed very becomingly with feathers and point lace and very handsome jewelry. Out of respect for the white hair of her affianced, she did not conecal her own gray hairs, but had them puffed and well arranged. She was attended by five generations of her relatives, who preceded her into the church and took reserved seats. The ceremony was performed by Elder Marshall with all solemnity, and the large congregation, that is, all that could get within the church, behaved with respectful attention. After the ceremony and after the venerable couple had been congratulated by the clergyman, Master Coleman Gentry, a youth of 5 years, a nephew of the fifth generation, stepped up to her bearing a beautiful bouquet of camelias and orange blossoms, which he presented in due form and which was accepted by the bride with evident pleasure. The congregation remained seated while the bridal party passed out. At the door, an old negto woman, one of her former servants, lifted her train and sarried

Andrew Jackson was a frequent walker here. With his image comes back the exextreme nicety of his dress. This was remarkable. There was nothing effeminate or such perfection of fit, such faultlessly gloved hands were not easily overlooked, if only from contrast to the ordinary ranks of careless-dressed men. Another exceedingly well-dressed man who walks Pennsylvania avecue is Presilent Grant. In the earlier days of his administration he did dump his hands in his pockets and travel slowly along the street with a smoking eigar in his mouth. He does no such thing now. Neither does he any longer use his pockets as mittens. His hands are carefully gloved, and he carries a substantial cane. I know old people who would say, comparing him with his former self: 'The President looks as if he had got religion.' Another especially clean looking man, who walks every day on Pennsylvania avenue, is the British Minister, Sir Edward Thornton. He has dark, kind, sagacious eyes, the regulation mutton chop whiskers of the Englishman, great big hands and feet, altocether that beefsteak basis of body and limb which Americans lack and long for.
